

Above.com Marketplace

Description

The Revenue column shows the total revenues earned by the domain name for the last 30 days prior to the auction. A value of n/a indicates that the seller has not made the traffic stats publicly available. The Traffic column shows the number of unique visitors, as reported by third party monetization services, for the last 30 days prior to the auction. Characters shows the number of characters of the domain.

Frank places a $15 max bid on a domain name with a $10 reserve price. The Max Bid value is the maximum amount that you are willing to pay for each domain. Reported stats for the domain as reported by parking companies.

Above.com guarantees that this value accurately reflects the figures as reported by the parking companies used to monetize the domain. All bids 10% above the current bid, or over $500, placed in the closing minutes of an auction will always extend the auction time. If the last bid is higher than the current bid, but does not beat the Max Bid of the current highest bidder, the auction time will not be extended. If the auction has a reserve price, an automatic bid will be placed up to the value of the reserve or the value of your max bid, whichever is lower.
